URGENT ACTION

JOURNALIST AT RISK

Mexican journalist, Alberto Amaro, has denounced several serious attacks in the last five years due to his work. In January 2024, he was chased by an unknown person in a vehicle who attempted to crash into Alberto's vehicle. Despite this, officials from Mexico's Mechanism for the Protection of Human Rights Defenders and Journalists have questioned his claims and even attempted to withdraw Amaro's protective measures. We urge the Ministry of the Interior to grant protective measures to Alberto that adequately respond to the level of risk he is facing.

Dear Minister,

Jordán, director of the Mexican media outlet, La Prensa de Tlaxcala. Due to his work, Alberto has been the victim of several very serious attacks. For example, an incident occurred on January 9, around 8:45 a.m., when an unknown person in a car with license plates from the State of Mexico overtook Alberto's vehicle and attempted to collide with the journalist's vehicle. Alberto Amaro is a beneficiary of the federal Mechanism for the Protection of Human Rights Defenders and Journalists and has two federal bodyguards. The guard who was driving managed to avoid hitting the other vehicle, but the aggressor pulled in front of them and tried to block their path. Alberto's driver eventually managed to evade the other vehicle and escape.

Despite these attacks and taking into consideration that Mexico is one of the world's most dangerous countries for journalists, Alberto Amaro has reported numerous failures in some of the protective measures granted to him by the federal Protection Mechanism. As of the end of February, the Mechanism has not fully addressed his concerns about his protection scheme.

I therefore urge you to immediately reassess Alberto Amaro's security situation, in consultation with him, guarantee that his existing protective measures are not withdrawn, and grant any additional measures that are needed to guarantee his safety, given the level of risk he faces, as well as ensuring that authorities investigate any attacks against him.

Yours sincerely,

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Alberto Amaro Jordán is a 35-year-old journalist from the town of Atexcatzingo, in the state of Tlaxcala, east of Mexico City. Since 2019, Amaro has been beaten, threatened, and arrested by police officers, intimidated by alleged members of a drug cartel, suffered an attempted break-in, and had shots fired at his house, among other attacks. Police officers and other unidentified individuals have photographed him, and his wife and son, and aggressors have hacked his website and smeared his reputation in Facebook posts accusing him of being a criminal. Despite all this, in August 2023, the Mechanism for the Protection of Human Rights Defenders and Journalists determined that he was no longer in danger after four years enrolled in the Mechanism and told him it would be withdrawing his four bodyguards. Amaro won an injunction to suspend the removal of his bodyguards but is uncertain if the Mechanism will continue providing protection in the future. He has accused Mechanism officials of ignoring the dangers he and his family continue to face due to his work.

Mexico is the Western Hemisphere's most dangerous country for journalists, according to extensive documentation by the Committee to Protect Journalists (CPJ) since 1992. Since the turn of the century, at least 153 journalists and other media workers have been killed, according to CPJ research; at least 64 of those killings were found to be directly related to their work. Impunity is the norm in crimes against the press. According to CPJ's yearly Global Impunity Index, Mexico consistently ranks among the ten countries with the highest number of journalist murders that remain unsolved.
