Dear Mr. Gostev

I am deeply concerned about the health and well-being of poet, Artyom Kamardin, sentenced to seven years imprisonment on trumped-up charges for a public reading of one of his poems. Artyom was subjected to harassment and ill-treatment while in pre-trial detention in Moscow.

On November 25, it was revealed that Artyom Kamardin had been transferred from a Moscow pre-trial detention center to another pre-trial detention center (SIZO-1) in Vladimir. His family was not informed of this transfer, nor of the name of the penal colony to which he will be transferred to serve his sentence, which is a violation of Russian law. There are concerns he may face torture or other ill-treatment during the transfer and at the penal colony. I am also deeply concerned about the impact of the inhumane transfer conditions on Artyom Kamardin's health. He is suffering from severe back pain, headaches, nausea, dizziness, and tinnitus, yet he has received no proper medical examination or treatment during his pre-trial detention.

I urge you to ensure that Artyom Kamardin is not subjected to harassment, torture, or other ill-treatment during his future transfer to, and while serving his sentence at, the penal colony. Additionally, I call on you to guarantee he receives the necessary healthcare he requires during transit and is transferred to a civilian hospital for a proper medical examination and treatment upon arrival. Lastly, I request that his family is promptly informed of the location where he will serve his sentence and that he is allowed to maintain contact with them during the transfer and at the colony.

Yours sincerely,

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

On September 22, 2022, activist and poet, Artyom Kamardin, participated in a public poetry reading in Moscow Triumfalnaya Square. These readings, called the “Maykovsky Readings”, have been held near the monument to the poet, Vladimir Mayakovsky, and continue the tradition of Soviet dissidents. The readings in September 2022 were held in protest against the mobilization declared the day before to replenish Russian troops fighting the war of aggression against Ukraine.

On September 26, 2022, armed police broke into the home of Artyom Kamardin and his partner, Aleksandra Popova. The police did not let Artyom’s lawyer be present during the search. Based on information provided by Aleksandra Popova, the law enforcement officers tortured Artyom Kamardin, subjecting him to sexualized violence, filming it and making her watch the video. Then, they forced Artyom Kamardin on to his knees and made him record an “apology” video for his anti-war poem. He was diagnosed with concussion, multiple bruises and other injuries, according to his lawyer. The authorities refused to hospitalize him.

Aleksandra Popova was also tortured by the police officers, who attached stickers to her face with superglue, pulled out her hair and beat her, which, according to Aleksandra Popova, resulted in concussion and a head injury. She was also verbally abused and threatened with gang rape.

A criminal case was opened against Artyom Kamardin and two other men, Yegor Shtovba and Nilkolay Daineko, who were also present at the Maykovsky Readings. They were charged with "incitement of hatred and enmity" (Article 282 (2) of the Criminal Code) and "public calls for actions directed against state security" (Article 280.4(3) of the Criminal Code). On December 28, 2023, the Moscow Tverskoy District Court sentenced Artyom Kamardin to seven years imprisonment. Yegor Shtovba was sentenced to five and a half years imprisonment. Artyom Kamardin had some pre-existing back conditions prior to his arrest and sentencing which have deteriorated during his imprisonment. Since April 2024 he has been suffering from severe back pain. He also reported additional significant deterioration in his health, including headaches, nausea, dizziness, and tinnitus. His psychological state has been also affected and he has had disturbed sleep and other issues.

For several months, Artyom’s family tried unsuccessfully to get him medically examined. On October 21, 2024, Artyom was finally transferred to the hospital ward of another pretrial detention center. However, no adequate medical examination was conducted due to the absence of the necessary equipment. The only treatment that Artyom Kamardin received was painkillers and vitamin injections. Artyom Kamardin was returned to the pretrial detention center, but his condition did not improve. There are concerns that his health may further deteriorate during his transfer to a penal colony.

Sources close to Artyom Kamardin told Amnesty International that he had been subjected to harassment and ill treatment during his pre-trial detention. His family also received information that Artyom Kamardin had been threatened with further torture and ill-treatment during transfer to and after the arrival at a penal colony.
